TO PREVENT OPEN BREAK

Ambassador Von Bernstorff Will Confer With Sec. Lansing.

(Special to The Herald)
Washington, April 18.—A strong effort to avert any open break between Germany and the United States is being made by Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador. He made an appointment to confer with Secretary Lansing late this afternoon and it is understood will give assurances that Germany is ready to meet the United States more than half way in an effort to end the controversy. It was indicated following today's cabinet meeting, however, that the United States will stand pat on its declaration that unless Germany shall give assurances that she will live up to the demands of international law in all future submarine operations, friendly relations will no longer be maintained. A copy of the new note to Germany was shown to Senator Stone, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee. The note has been turned over to the State Department experts to be converted into code and sent on its way to Berlin.

ENGINEER OF FLIER ARRESTED

Pending Investigation of Wreck at Bradford—Officials Disagree as to Position of Signals

(Special to The Herald)
Bradford, R. I., April 18.—General Manager C. L. Bardo of the New Haven railroad who arrived on the first relief sent to the scene of the wreck declared today: "It would be unfair to the public and all concerned to make a definite statement as to the cause of the accident. That can only be determined by a rigid investigation which is now under way. As far as we can learn, there are five known dead. There are about 30 injured, some seriously, others slightly." The dead and nearly all the injured were passengers in the rear car of the local train which consisted of wooden cars. Into this car for a distance of 12 feet, the huge locomotive of the

WILL HOLD EXPOSITION

In the Interests of the Motion Picture Industry at New York.

New York, April 18.—The First National Motion Picture Exposition to be held at Madison Square Garden, May 6-14, under the direction of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, Inc., will be the greatest event in the history of motion pictures. It is being organized and will be carried through on a large scale. It will open wide to the American public a new world of entertainment art and education. The salaries paid to the motion picture actors and actresses who are to appear before the camera in specially written scenarios at the Exposition would total up something like the interest on the national debt. Some of those who will be in the Exposition pictures are: Mary Pickford, Theda Bara, Anita Stewart, Helen Ware, Olga Petrova, Pearl White, Margaret Gibson, Helen Holmes, Cyril Selig, William Farnum, Lionel Barrymore, Frank Daniels, Victor Moore, George Ovey, F. Forest Taylor and George Heban.

ATTEMPTED TO KILL GEN. PERSHING

Mexicans Who Sought to Assassinate the American Commander and Body Guard Foiled in Purpose

(Special to The Herald)
El Paso, April 18.—The American troops in Southern Chihuahua have retreated more than 50 miles northward owing to evidences of increased hostilities on the part of Mexicans toward the pursuers of Villa and the lack of supplies. This information, which came from reliable sources, reached military authorities at Fort Bliss today. Mexican animosity is now preventing the U. S. troops purchasing food that they were able to get with American gold in Northern Chihuahua. General Pershing who had gone to the front to direct the actual hunt for Villa has returned to his base near Namiquipa. There he is making plans to meet the critical situation that has arisen and is awaiting replies to certain recommendations which he has transmitted to the American government through Major General Funston. During his return ride to the Namiquipa base, an attempt was made by Mexicans to assassinate General Pershing and his escort, which consisted of a small troop of cavalry. Just as the Pershing party reached the outskirts of Providencia, Mexican snipers opened fire on the detachment. The Americans dismounted instantly and returned the fire. Most of the snipers were silent. Those who continued to fire were driven from their shelters by soldiers who crept upon them and ejected them by a flank fire. The Americans are reported to have taken several prisoners without suffering any losses. The detachment then continued its journey.

TO THE CHRISTIAN PEOPLE OF PORTSMOUTH AND VICINITY

For the first time in many years, because of a coincidence between the Julian and Gregorian calendars, the whole Catholic and Apostolic Church (Greek, Roman and Anglican), with many Protestants, throughout the whole world will commemorate this Holy Week the Passion and Death upon the Cross of Jesus of Nazareth, the Savior and Redeemer of the Human Race. At this crisis in the world's history, when we hear not only of wars, but of rumors of wars, it would seem a most fitting and reverent thing for Christians of every name to lay aside their differences, at least for the time being, and unite in keeping this Good Friday as a most solemn and holy day in loving thought and remembrance of Him who said: "Greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends." Many of the leading merchants of Portsmouth, Jew as well as Christian, have signified their willingness to close their places of business from noon till 3 p. m. on Good Friday, out of reverence for the Crucifixion—these being the hours of the supernatural darkness that accompanied the Savior's Death. It has been practically impossible for many of the business men in the city personally about this matter, but so wide-spread and ready has been the response to this request that they close during the above time, that I take this opportunity to ask those whom I have not met if they will not join with their neighbors in the midst of these troubled times of world-war, in honoring the memory of the Prince of Peace. To those who wish to keep Good Friday by some religious observance and who have no religious services of their own during the above hours, a most cordial invitation is extended pastors and people to join in the "Service of the Passion" at St. John's Church, Portsmouth, beginning at noon. This is a service of simple, personal devotion to the Son of God, and consists of familiar hymns, prayers and meditations on the Passion of Christ, interspersed with short devotional addresses on the "Seven Last Words From the Cross." Faithfully yours,
W. M. PARTRIDGE,
Rector of St. John's Church.
Enlisted Men of the United States Service will be welcome in uniform at all services of St. John's Church.

URGES PLAY SCHEDULE IN SCHOOL SYSTEMS

Professor Sommers Thinks Play is one of the Most Important Factors in Education of the Child

"Play will add ten years to your life." This statement was made last evening by Professor Sommers in his address on "Play as an educational factor" delivered at the high school under the auspices of the Civic Association. Professor Sommers, a member of the faculty of the New Hampshire State College, firmly believes that play is as much a necessary part of our lives as any other factor. He said that play was spontaneous action resulting from surplus energy and that it was necessary in every life, in that it was instrumental in developing the mind, and body and played an important part in the social and religious development.

One of his strongest statements was that a child absolutely devoid of the play instinct would grow up an idiot. Professor Sommers divided the play period in the life of a person into several separate periods; from birth to the age of seven years; from seven to twelve years and from twelve to eighteen years; in the child and then the period of play in the adult. In the first period Professor Sommers said that the child played individually and spontaneously; that his games were his own non-competitive and non-co-operative. He pointed out that from birth to the a number of educators at the present but he firmly believed that play was far more important in the education of the child. He said that play must be socialized and that the child must be taught early to lose sight of the individual and realize the importance of group.

According to Professor Sommers, all play is imitation and there is nothing new in the games. They may take new forms but all of them are imitations of something the child has seen. The old racial traits play an important part in the games of the child as well as in the animal. He pointed out the play of the cat and the dog as coming from that active life of its more savage ancestor. The cat plays with a ball or piece of paper in exactly as his ancestor secured his prey. The dog of today still has the habit of burying food, not because there is any necessity for so doing but because his forefathers were obliged to in order to live. The action of the child in swimming and in climbing trees is advanced by many students as one of their theories that man is a descendant of a race which lived more or less in the water and trees than they do now. Hide and seek is another one of the games which comes to us from our ancestors.

He said that the custom of vacations in the adult—going to the mountains or seashore in the summer and returning—is simply one of the migratory habits of our long distant ancestors; and in the same way hunting and fishing are part of these habits. In football, probably the oldest of the co-operative games, Professor Sommers said that it was merely the old battle instinct of our ancestors, with the arms taken away from us.

The child's play, he said, has a distinct bearing on the life of that child. The instinct to save things, old papers, string, pieces of cloth or machinery—in the hopes that they may be used to make something with—is the foundation of the saving habit and results perhaps in the foundation of the bank account. It may be useful at some time. Curiously is another of the big factors of the play period, he said. The child will take a thing apart and try to put it together again. Just to see "what is in it." Professor Sommers said that the constructive period comes early in the child if he is not given too many playthings already made. A child with a block board will make wonderful things, not that we can see them perhaps, but they are there in the child's mind, although he may not have the ability to put them on the board in a clear, finished way. But to him they are very wonderful.

Professor Sommers said that from the sand pile the child will build mountains, rivers, houses, animals and others and that all these things aid in his development. The assist in strengthening his mental ability and add to his reasoning powers. The collections of antiques, valuable art collections and others come as the result of the collection play periods of the child. He learns this play of acquiescence early and when it is developing it should be guided into the proper channels. In his conclusion Professor Sommers urged that the parents of children take part of their time to play with the child to enter into his games and to direct his views into the correct channels. He re-asserted that play was one of the most important parts of the education of the child and was just as important in the adult.

GOOD NEWS

Many Portsmouth Readers Have Heard It and Profited Thereby. "Good news travels fast," and the many bad back sufferers in Portsmouth are glad to learn where relief may be found. Many a lame, weak and aching back is no more, thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills. Our citizens are telling the good news of their experiences with this tested remedy. Here is an example worth reading:

Mrs. Olive Whinn, 106 Myrtle Ave., Portsmouth, says: "My back and kidneys gave me a great deal of trouble. The pains centered in the small of my back running into my head and causing dizziness and headache. My kidneys were too frequent in action and the kidney secretions caused annoyance. I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Phillips's Pharmacy, and they soon gave me excellent relief and corrected the action of my kidneys. I use Doan's Kidney Pills occasionally, as a preventive."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Winn had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

WANTS AN EXTRA HOUR OF DAYLIGHT

Concord Board of Trade May Set the City's Clocks Ahead Sixty Minutes.

Concord, April 18.—Acting on the suggestion of Chairman Edward C. Niles of the public service commission the Concord board of trade at the next meeting will consider the advisability of setting Concord's clocks ahead an hour so as to afford the people in stores, offices and factories an extra hour at the end of the day for social diversion. Mr. Niles is a firm believer in the "daylight savings" movement. In a communication to Secretary W. W. Thayer of the board of trade, Mr. Niles says:

"I would like to suggest that the board of trade take up this matter and see whether the same can be done in Concord, Cleveland, Ohio, which is at the point of division between Eastern and Central time, entirely ignores the standard time and keeps all its clocks an hour ahead of railroad time. I have noted within a few days that Whimper has decided to set its clocks ahead one hour during the summer. I understand that there are places on the Massachusetts coast on the south shore of the cape where this practice has prevailed for many years. Inquiry of the chamber of commerce in any of these places would doubtless bring information as to its success."

"Here in Concord we are very near the Eastern boundary of the Eastern division. Our standard time is the true time of Buffalo, N. Y. By this arrangement we lose a large part of an hour of daylight every day. If from the first of May to the first of November all business of every kind began an hour longer at the end of the day for recreation, tennis, golfing, bicycling, automobilizing, going up river, working in the garden, sunset league games or any other wholesome way of spending the time out of doors that appeals to individual tastes."

"I have had this experience for some time in the Maine woods in August, where we have breakfast at 7 o'clock, dinner at 11 o'clock, with a long period of daylight or twilight following for the evening fishing, and I know from this experience it is not a bit harder to get up at 6 than at 7 o'clock. If one goes to bed correspondingly early I believe that the change would be of really great value to us all. If it is worked out it will have to be done through the board of trade and I wish that you would take it up and put it through."

BLISTER RUST THREATENING NEW ENGLAND PINE TREES

Forests May be Destroyed Unless Large Sums Are Spent to Stamp Out This Disease Which is Proving Disastrous Throughout the Country

The Federal government will be asked to make an appropriation of $50,000 this year and state legislatures will also be asked by the forest committee to set large sums aside in an attempt to save the New England forests from the "blister rust" which is threatening to destroy all the pines in this section of the country. Massachusetts legislators appear favorable to the appropriation of $10,000 for this purpose and it is expected that the general courts of the other New England towns will go as far.

The white pine blister rust is a fungus disease native of Europe and according to eminent authorities it has rendered the growing of our native white pine in England, Denmark, Holland and parts of Germany impracticable.

The disease was imported to this country on nursery stock of white pine and plantations made from such stock in the states of New York, Pennsylvania, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut, have been found to be infected with this disease. Plantations in other states are under suspicion.

Unlike the chestnut blight, the blister can not spread directly from one pine to another pine. It has two hosts: one stage of the disease lives in the bark of five-leaved pines, the other develops on the leaves of currant and gooseberries can spread to other currants and gooseberries and also to pines.

There is but one stage of the disease on the pines, and this can spread only back to the currants and gooseberries. Therefore, the disease has a vulnerable point of attack; namely, the complete elimination of one or the other of the hosts in the sections where the disease is found.

Where the disease has been located the safe thing to do is to destroy all currants and gooseberries in the immediate vicinity, whether or not they are infected, as well as all pines that are infected.

The total distance that the disease will spread in one season probably cannot be definitely determined, but one point is certain, namely, that it will spread in this country, wherever pines and currants or gooseberries are found in the same vicinity.

Berry bushes spread. Wild currants and gooseberries are found practically all over the country, which makes the spread certain, unless drastic measures are taken to prevent it. The maximum distance that the disease will carry from currants and gooseberries to pines, and vice versa, is several hundred yards.

The disease is known to attack the white pine, the Pacific coast sugar pine, and the white pine of the northern Rocky Mountain region. There are six other five-leaved pines which are believed to be susceptible. The value of the pines that will certainly be lost in the United States is estimated to be over $425,000,000.

It is known that the disease has killed trees up to 15 years of age in this country and up to 20 years in Europe. Trees of any age are liable to be attacked, which means the ultimate commercial extinction of the five-leaved pines, unless the rust is suppressed.

There was a time when the gypsy and brown-bellied moths could have been exterminated had the proper measures been applied. That opportunity was neglected, with the result that despite the subsequent expenditure of millions of dollars, we shall probably never be rid of these pests.

The chestnut blight was neglected until it became so widely scattered that control was impossible and all of our chestnut trees are doomed, which means the loss of dollars.

Even the youngest towns of this continent can boast such. New England offers all these to the pleasure seeker, but she offers more. She offers her fisheries. This may sound homely, but let us see.

There is nothing artistic about a slaughter house, although a round-up may have something of the picturesque. But a round-up can be viewed in our west but once in a while.

Glance at our fisheries. Who has not felt a thrill when watching an out-bound fishing craft, with reeled canvas, plunging into a white-capped rolling sea; or a similar craft, with all sails set, coming slowly into port at eventide? Who can resist a chance to accompany a weather-beaten fisherman as he goes hauling his trawls; or forbear to watch his as he baits his lines?

There is a fascination connected with the world-old trade of the fisherman which adds a mysterious attraction to any landscape.

Nasty smoking factories and mills, with their tired looking workers have rather a depressing effect. But view a modern fishing port, even that great est of all modern fishing establishments, healthy, cheerful workers, somehow or means, the Boston Fish Pier. Here are other talents with that same fascination which beclouds the lone fisherman. This pier, the largest in the world devoted entirely to fish, built on sanitary principles and administered according to up-to-date business methods, has some mysterious attractions which similar business plants do not. If you doubt it, pay it a visit and see.

Thus we come to tradition and history. Probably no other industry in the country has more traditions, more unchanged traditions than our fisheries, and our history is intimately connected with them. While modern machinery has revolutionized almost every other industry, the methods of the fisheries have changed little. The individual fishermen are almost the last of this old school of individual master workmen. The history of our fisheries began with the history of our country. Our first schools were built through money provided by them. Fishermen have aided our navy, and recruited our army in our wars. Fishing is our oldest industry.

Thus then, are our fisheries an asset to New England. To be sure, in dollars and cents they are worth millions a year. But their true value cannot be estimated. When you boorn the fisheries, you boorn New England.

RACE SEGREGATION BEFORE SUPREME COURT. Washington April 18.—The race segregation problem, which has stirred up endless trouble in the courts of various states, mostly those of the south has finally been put up to the U. S. supreme court for decisions.

Elaborate arguments have been filed with the courts as to whether cities may enact laws separating the white and negro inhabitants. The specific case now before the court is a Louisville, Ky., ordinance, which makes it unlawful for a negro to occupy a residence in any block where a majority of the houses are occupied by white persons.

Decision of the constitutionality of this question will settle the validity of similar measures in Richmond, St. Louis, Baltimore and a score of other cities in the south. Louisville's legal representatives, in briefs submitted, defend the ordinance as necessary to preserve race integrity and to prevent racial conflicts. They contend that the measure is not one of discrimination, and is essentially reciprocal in its terms. Opponents of the ordinance contend that it is a violation of the negro's equal rights privilege.

Doan's Regulates are recommended by many who say they operate easily, without griping and without bad after effects. See at all drug stores.

SCIENTISTS IN SESSION AT WASHINGTON

Washington, April 17.—The National Academy of Sciences met in annual session here today, with prominent scientists from throughout the country in attendance. The sessions will continue for three days.

Dr. William J. Vetch of Baltimore, president of the academy, in presenting his report at the opening session made announcement of the award of medals to Clifford Pinchot, former Government forester, for distinguished public service in organizing and directing the movement for the systematic conservation of the natural resources of the United States, and to Cleveland Abbe, for distinguished public service in establishing and organizing the United States weather service. The award of a medal to Professor Armin O. Leuschner of the University of California for skill and ability in supervising the preparation of tables of the Watson asteroids, involving original methods, and leading to results of much value to celestial mechanics, also was announced. Actual presentation of the medals, however, will take place later on during the meeting.

A feature was the presentation of a paper by Dr. Jacques Loeb of the Rockefeller Institute of New York in which he announced that recent experiments conducted by him in the artificial creation of frogs, had confirmed the belief that only males can be so produced. He declared he had managed to keep a number of such frogs alive for a year.

Most of the morning session was taken up with a symposium on the exploration of the Pacific, conducted by Professor William M. Davis of Harvard University.

I'VE BEEN TOLD THAT

G., of this city, who have qualified as 16-door marksmen will leave on Wednesday for the state range at Lake Massabesic for work on the 200, 300 and 500 yard ranges. The 16-door work for qualifying has been done on sub calibra machines and quite a number of the Portsmouth men enlisted have so far qualified.

At the armory this evening after the regular drill period this evening, the members of the company and their invited guests will be entertained with several wrestling and boxing bouts. The officers of the company have been doing all possible to create interest among the men of the company in bringing them to the armory and making the work more interesting as well as instructive.

One of the men enlisted in the company is a former U. S. cavalryman and has spent some time in the service along the Mexican border. In speaking last evening about the reported death of the Mexican bandit leader he said that in his opinion it was quite probable, provided Villa had been wounded. He said that he knew of a surgeon who had treated Villa for two years for blood poisoning and that this doctor had remarked at one time that a serious wound suffered by him would be more likely to prove fatal than a similar wound received by a man whose blood was in a normal condition.

The last of the series of lectures which have been held this season under the auspices of the Civic League was held last evening. This series has been on subjects which were interesting and instructive and the officers of the league have regretted that the attendance has been so small. They are hopeful that if these lectures are continued for another year the public will take a more active interest in them.

Thursday being the 10th birthday of the Pennsylvania Railroad, it was only natural that all sorts of stories should be in circulation regarding the company and its securities. Probably none of these tales created more amusement than one told by a well-known Stock Exchange house in a circular recently issued on Pennsylvania and its achievements. The story is that a wealthy old man, dying, called his sons about him to divide his stocks and bonds among them equally. When he had completed the distribution it was noticed by those who stood about him that he tucked a large sheet of Pennsylvania Railroad shares underneath his pillow. Moved by a restless one of the sons asked: "Father, what are you going to do with that Pennsylvania stock?" "Take it with me, my boy," the dying man replied. "Pennsylvania shares are negotiable everywhere."

FISHING INDUSTRY AN ITEM IN NEW ENGLAND PROSPERITY

(From the Educational Dept., New England Fish Exchange.)

In the campaign to boom New England, the boomers should not forget the fisheries of New England. Government statisticians have figured out in dollars and cents the value of these fisheries. They will tell you the large number of vessels employed, the army of men who make their living through the industry, and number of pounds of each variety of fish caught each week, month and year, the in count of capital invested, and the earnings of the industry. This is one way of computing the value of our fisheries.

There is another. And this other is much more important to the "boom New England" movement. In other words, its fisheries have for New England a value which no statistician can estimate even. And that is the value of pleasure, of fascination.

Beautiful valleys, wonderful hills, winding rivers, rushing streams, rocky coasts, are all great attractions for the tourist. But as a matter of fact, almost any landscape has some artistic merit. A community needs more than these to attract visitors.

Great industries, noisy factories, busy mills, are a source of pleasure and wonderment which tourists enjoy. But these, too, can be found almost anywhere in America.

Mass covered roofs, or spots glorified by tradition and crowned by history are mecca for tourists. It is true but what spot in the world can be found attached to which there is not some tradition, about which does not shine a halo of some historic incident.

MARKET STREET PORTSMOUTH

M. E. church were interesting and well attended. In the morning the pastor spoke on "Some Interesting Fishes From the Conference," and told of the great progress of the church. For example, in the Sunday school of the M. E. church, North, there are 4,503,000 pupils enrolled, a gain of 1,352,000 in eight years. The church's educational board controls a $50,000,000 endowment fund, 6,000 educational institutions, 100 of which are colleges and universities. The increase in membership of the church is phenomenal.

In the evening the subject was "The Personality of Satan." Human philosophy, experience, and scripture combined to attest the personality of Satan. He is mankind's arch foe, which all should fear. He is the master of deception. Christ is his great antagonist. To win against him men need to do three things—First, come to Christ and definitely seek to follow him; second, to be much in prayer; third, to know the Bible.

PARTRIDGES FIND SHELTER BETWEEN HOSTILE TRENCHES. Paris, April 17.—A French bird magazine says that partridges, which are very numerous near the front, are to be found mostly between the French and German trenches among the barbed-wire entanglements.

It is, in fact, the only spot where they can be, comparatively speaking, at ease, for humans seldom venture into this no-man's land. Sometimes they find themselves in the middle of a cannonade, but they close and seem to huddle the noise very little.

The magazine gives a list of birds who are afraid and run away and those who do not mind war. The first includes starlings, swallows, and martins, and the last larks, thrushes, wag-tails and grosbeaks.

Scores of Others Injured When Gilt Edge Express Bound for New York Crashes Into a Local at Bradford, R. I.

Bradford, R. I., April 18.—Many are dead and scores were injured in a wreck which occurred here at 7:30 o'clock Monday morning on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad when the Gilt Edge express leaving Boston for New York at 5:31 o'clock rammed a local which left Boston for New London at 5:03 o'clock.

The rear car of the local was crumpled up by the collision and caught fire. The local was ready to take a siding here when the express crashed into her. The railroad officials lay the blame upon an engineer's mistake.

There were 37 passengers in the rear car of the local and it was here that death took its greatest toll.

The local train which is operated between Boston and New London, left Boston at 5:03 o'clock Monday afternoon. It was made up of two coaches, a smoking car and baggage car and a locomotive, that according to the conductor, was in trouble much of the way. Between Kingston and Westerly the engine failed to make steam properly and there were several stops. The train had stopped in front of the local station when the express that had left Boston at 5:31 o'clock emerged from a heavy fog and smashed into it. The rear car of the local train took the brunt of the blow. Like the two other passenger cars it was of wood and a moment after the crash was in flames.

The Gilt Edge express left Boston at 5:31 o'clock and was due in New York at 11:15 p. m. The only stop outside of Boston before the accident occurred was at Providence where the train arrived at 6 o'clock. The express was within six miles of Westerly, where it was due at 7:35 when the crash came.

The express was made up of parlor cars, Pullman smoking cars, dining cars and coaches.

The explosion of the boiler of the express engine spread fire rapidly through the wreckage. Before the fire department could reach the scene from Westerly after a six mile run, the cars which caught fire had been destroyed by the flames, and the station and adjoining freight house were smoking ruins.

The Bradford station was formerly known as Niantic. When a party of English capitalists bought mill property at the place and the station was renamed after Bradford, England. The spot is six miles out of Westerly and forty miles from Providence and there were no facilities either for coping with the fire at the wreck or for caring for the injured except in neighboring farmhouses and in the homes of the mill hands.

Westerly, R. I., April 18, 1:00 a. m.—In spite of statements issued by New Haven railroad officials, it is known that the dead in the wreck at Bradford, a few miles from here, will be close to thirty. Five have been removed from the burning car and more are known to be inside. Doctors and others have been rushed from here to assist in caring for the many injured and to try and save what lives they can. It is one of the most serious wrecks the road has had in this section of the shore route to New York.

New York, April 18, 12:00 m.—Vice president Whaley of the New Haven railroad definitely stated at midnight his belief that the report to the effect that 30 or more persons had been killed in the wreck at Bradford, R. I., was without foundation. He said that not more than 3 had been killed although he believed that several may have been injured.

The bodies of four victims charred almost beyond recognition were taken early today from the smoldering ruins of the local into which plowed the fier, splitting open the rear car of the local and trapping the thirty or more passengers. The search was continued as rapidly as the cooling of the ruins would permit. In the fear that the bodies were hidden in the blackened wreckage.

The bodies have been positively identified by personal effects. Of the 32 persons injured whose names were in the possession of officials, one, Mrs. Olive Martelle of Southbridge, Mass., was so badly injured that she died after her removal from the wreck to the hospital in New London.

The Hardman

THE PIANO THAT GIVES PERENNIAL SATISFACTION

This is an interesting fact about the Hardman Piano. Run your eye over the lists of used and exchanged pianos offered every now and then for sale at reduced prices. You will notice that the Hardman is conspicuous by its absence. A hundred or more different manufacturers are constantly represented in the lists in the course of the year, but rarely found is the name of Hardman.

This can mean only one thing. The people who have bought the Seventy Thousand Hardman Pianos are so thoroughly satisfied with them that they desire no change. Even when they decide to replace their piano by a Player-Piano, they still want a Hardman. So they come to us and exchange their valued old friend for a Hardman Auto-tone.

That word "friend" sums up the whole situation. The Hardman is the Piano of the Home. Almost from the moment of its arrival in the household it is regarded by each member of it not as a mere musical instrument but as a real living, intimate friend.

It is this that should influence you when you are making up your mind as to what Piano you are going to buy. These facts you will find well worth remembering.

Terms arranged to suit your convenience.
Liberal allowance for instruments taken in exchange.

REPORT NEW CRISIS ON GRECIAN FRONT

King Constantine Said to be Ready to Resist the Transportation of Allied Troops Through Piraeus

London, April 17.—Decisive steps by the allies have forced a new crisis at Athens, with the possibility that Greece may find herself thrust into war against her will.

Overriding the objections of the Greek government, the allies have begun transporting Serbian troops over land by rail from Corfu to Salonica. The Austrian and German governments, according to Athens dispatches today, protested several days ago that they would regard it as a deliberately unfriendly act if Greece permitted this troop movement.

French correspondents at Athens reported that King Constantine is incensed at the action of the allies and may attempt to stop the transportation of Serbian troops by a show of arms.

The allies did not want to transport the newly equipped Serbian army from the island of Corfu to Salonica by water, because of the danger from Austro-German submarines. They therefore suggested to Premier Skouloudis that the Serbian troops be sent to Patras by steamer and then transported by rail.

The Greek prime minister sounded out the German and Austrian ministers on this suggestion. They telegraphed their governments and received immediate replies that both Germany and Austria would consider that Greece had overstepped the bounds of neutrality if she acquiesced in the allies' suggestion.

This information was at once communicated to the ministers of the allies. Minister Skouloudis added that Serbian troops would have to pass through Piraeus, the port of Athens, in a movement by rail, and that their presence near the capital might inflame the people to violent demonstrations.

The allies, however, proceeded with their arrangements, and the first Serbian detachment to be landed at Patras reached Salonica on Saturday.

Artillery Fighting at Verdun
Paris, April 17.—French positions in Avocourt wood and on the front from Dead Man's hill to Cimetieres were bombarded yesterday. There were no infantry attacks, the official report of the afternoon says. To the east of the Meuse the night was calm except for artillery activity at Handreumont wood.

The text of the statement follows:
"On the left bank of the river Meuse there has been an intense bombardment of the French positions in the Avocourt wood and on the front from La Mort Homme (Dead Man's hill) to Cimetieres.

"On the right bank of the river the night passed in relative calm except in the region to the south of Handreumont wood, where there was continuous artillery activity. There were no infantry attacks during the day and night.

"There is nothing to report from the remainder of the front, with the exception of the customary cannonading. During the night of April 16-17 a French air squadron composed of nine machines during an intense fog, executed certain important bombing operations in the region of Condemns, Pagny, Arnaville and Rombach. Projectiles were dropped as follows: Twelve shells on the railroad station at Condemns, 16 on the factory at Rombach, 8 on the railroad station at Arnaville, 11 on the railroad line at Pagny and Ars.

"During the night of April 15-16 a French armed aeroplane flying over the North Sea at an altitude of 300 feet threw down 16 shells at a vessel of the enemy; 11 of these missiles found their mark."

Austrian Statement
Berlin, April 17.—Austro-Hungarian military headquarters today issued the following report:

"Russian front: Only the usual artillery engagements.

"Italian front: On the coast land front there have been only moderate artillery engagements. In the section of Dobrovo Heights there has been greater activity. East of Selz a small engagement is in progress. In the Dobrovo district Austro-Hungarian artillery shelled some sections of the Dalmatians."

Austrians Abandon Plan for Attack Upon Valona

Rome, April 17.—Plans for an Austrian offensive against the Albanian port of Valona have been abandoned because of activities along the Italian and Russian fronts. It was learned here today.

"The Austrians were moving troops southward through Albania, when the Russians and Italians simultaneously attacked Austrian lines. The troop movements were stopped and part of the Austrian forces were sent back to the Isouza, where they have been seen in action.

Gen. Porro, second in command of the Italian army, has returned from an inspection of the Italian defenses of Valona.

Holland Sends Second Protest to Great Britain.

Berlin, April 17, wireless to Bayville.—A second protest against detention of mails by the British authorities with a demand for indemnities, is said by the Overseas News Agency to have been made by the Dutch government. The Dutch note is in reply to the memorandum addressed by the entente allies in answer to the complaint of neutral countries with respect to the delaying of mail.

The Dutch government refers to the assertion in the communication of the allies that the German and Austro-Hungarian naval authorities are responsible for the destruction of various mail boats without warning, and replies that the mail lost in this manner was destroyed in consequence of acts of war and not by unlawful interference with mails. Holland points out that the British government has declined a large quantity of mail, including registered letters containing values, it demands restitution of the detained letters and indemnities.

A similar note, the News Agency says, has been sent by Holland to France.

Italian Chamber of Deputies Solid for War Policy
Rome, via Paris, April 17.—"Our objective is simple," declared Baron Rudinow, the foreign minister, in concluding a lengthy review of the international situation to the Chamber of Deputies. "It is to fight with all our might for the common cause, while safeguarding the supreme vital interests of the nation. We have heavy tasks still before us, but with mutual cordial co-operation among the allies we face the future with the fullest confidence in the brilliant fortune of Italy."

The minister's speech was received with enthusiasm and at its conclusion he was accorded a long ovation by a crowded house.

The chamber voted the foreign affairs budget by 397 to 40. The chamber adjourned to June 5.

Drops 16 Bombs on the Deck of German Warship

Paris, April 17.—A French aviator dropped 16 bombs from an altitude of only 100 yards on the deck of a German warship in the North Sea, the war office announced this afternoon.

The French plane flew so low that it was believed the bombardment had good effect.

Aviators were active last night on the Verdun front and east of the fortress, despite the heavy fog. French air squadrons bombarded the railway stations at Condemns, Pagny, Arnaville and Rombach.

Rout Turks Near Trebizond
Petrograd, via London, April 17.—Announcement was made by the war office yesterday that Turkish forces had been ejected from a position about seventeen miles east of the important port of Trebizond, the capture of which has been the objective of recent Russian operations along this front.

The statement follows:
"In the coastal region and to the south, after a desperate fight our troops supported by guns on land and sea, dislodged the Turks from a powerfully organized position on the left bank of Kuru Dere, seventeen miles east of Trebizond. We are pursuing the enemy energetically.

"Repeated attacks by the enemy in the direction of Bayburt were repulsed with heavy losses to the assailants."

Turks Tried to Retake Erzerum
The supreme effort of the Turkish forces to oppose the further westward progress of the Russian central armies, operating beyond Erzerum, recently culminated in a stubborn six days' battle, the importance of which is suggested by the brief mention in the official communications. The Turks not only made a determined stand along the whole front from the Black Sea coast to Hittis, but organized an offensive campaign the evident intention of which was to recapture Erzerum.

He said he was astonished to find so many cases of wealth suddenly thrust upon an heir who had never been educated to deal with an income and its relation to personal expenditure, the church, charities and the advancement of one's fellow man.

In canvassing for the Church Pension Fund, Bishop Lawrence ran into more than one confession about as follows: "Until I was over 40 father handed me $15 or $20 or whatever sum might be needed for some personal expenditures outside of my regular bills. Suddenly I inherited an income of a hundred thousand a year. The wonder is that I did not go to pieces under such sudden freedom and large income. I had absolutely no training in the handling of a personal income or in adjusting its relations to my fellow man. I did not know whether the church was entitled to $50 or $5000, or where I and my fortune really belonged in the world."

One young man suddenly inheriting a large fortune expanded his household and automobile expenditures, servant bills, etc., only to find that his liabilities were increasing and his pleasures and freedom decreasing. He wanted to do what was right in his social relations in the distribution of his income, but he was absolutely without education or training in this respect.

The business sense and general balance of Bishop Lawrence is easily understood from his narration of his own experience. Once addressing a class of young persons, he was great applause with the declaration: "I hope your parents insist upon giving you more income than you need to spend?" Then he explained: "My father thus brought up his family and after this manner I look out for mine. I was taught as soon as I was able to use money to keep account of it and not only balance my cash, but properly balance my expenditures, to assume my proper relations with my neighbors and their neighbors' interest in my expenditures; to know what proportion I gave to myself and what I gave to others; what my obligations were to the church and to society. I kept accounts and made return to my father of the disposition of my income."

Bishop Lawrence, now in Wall Street for a season, could teach Wall Street many financial lessons.

It is foolish expenditure of income rather than his foolish investment which has given rise to much of the antagonism to organized wealth, and title to property, through publicly licensed corporations.

Wasteful expenditure and unwise investments both arise from lack of education and they tend to obscure in the public view the great benefit to man, and his material progress of aggregated wealth.

TO BUILD NEW THEATRE

Dartmouth Students Will Now Be Able to See "Movies."

Hanover, N. H., April 18.—Dartmouth college students who have hitherto been compelled to travel five miles to Lebanon or White River Junction for "movie" entertainment will not have to leave town next year. Hanover, till now "movie-less," is to have a modern fire-proof structure for film plays next fall. A moving picture license has just been granted to F. W. and P. F. Davidson. Except at such times as the college is closed there will be six night and three afternoon performances a week. The building is to be constructed at once on a plot a stone's throw from the campus with a seating capacity of 500. Students will probably act as ushers and provide the music.

THE CHURCH IN WALL STREET

WALL STREET JOURNAL SAYS BISHOP LAWRENCE COULD TEACH MANY FINANCIAL LESSONS.

New York, April 17.—The Wall Street Journal of today carried this comment on the work of Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, Bishop of Massachusetts, in connection with his campaign to raise a $50,000,000 pension fund for clergymen.

Bishop Lawrence, who is now endeavoring to raise a few millions in Wall Street to inaugurate the $50,000,000 church pension plan, made some private confessions recently, which should interest every financial accumulator.

He said he was astonished to find so many cases of wealth suddenly thrust upon an heir who had never been educated to deal with an income and its relation to personal expenditure, the church, charities and the advancement of one's fellow man.

In canvassing for the Church Pension Fund, Bishop Lawrence ran into more than one confession about as follows: "Until I was over 40 father handed me $15 or $20 or whatever sum might be needed for some personal expenditures outside of my regular bills. Suddenly I inherited an income of a hundred thousand a year. The wonder is that I did not go to pieces under such sudden freedom and large income. I had absolutely no training in the handling of a personal income or in adjusting its relations to my fellow man. I did not know whether the church was entitled to $50 or $5000, or where I and my fortune really belonged in the world."

One young man suddenly inheriting a large fortune expanded his household and automobile expenditures, servant bills, etc., only to find that his liabilities were increasing and his pleasures and freedom decreasing. He wanted to do what was right in his social relations in the distribution of his income, but he was absolutely without education or training in this respect.

The business sense and general balance of Bishop Lawrence is easily understood from his narration of his own experience. Once addressing a class of young persons, he was great applause with the declaration: "I hope your parents insist upon giving you more income than you need to spend?" Then he explained: "My father thus brought up his family and after this manner I look out for mine. I was taught as soon as I was able to use money to keep account of it and not only balance my cash, but properly balance my expenditures, to assume my proper relations with my neighbors and their neighbors' interest in my expenditures; to know what proportion I gave to myself and what I gave to others; what my obligations were to the church and to society. I kept accounts and made return to my father of the disposition of my income."

The pedagogic and his literary, science and theology have few textbooks to supply the deficiency in our combined business and education system.

The teacher, the preacher and the ruler have conspired in times past to place their position and calling as something higher, above and apart from business. Yet business—production and distribution by the hand of man—is the foundation support under the school, the church and the state.

APPOINTMENTS ARE MADE

N. H. Dept. Commander of G. A. R. Issues Instructions for Memorial Day.

Concord, April 17.—Department Commander Reuben T. Leavitt of the New Hampshire G. A. R. has made additional appointments of staff officers.

Asst. Adjutant General Frank Battles was reappointed the same day that Commander Leavitt was elected. The other staff appointments include: Asst. quartermaster general, George B. Lane, Laconia; judge advocate, D. N. Sackett, Barnstead Center; department inspector, B. M. Tilton, Pittsfield; chief mustering officer, Rufus Gale, Penacook; patriotic instructor, David E. Procter, Wilton; senior aide-de-camp, William A. Hapney, Concord.

In reference to Memorial and Flag days, Commander Leavitt says:

"Let us remember Memorial Day, May 30, as sacred to the memory of veterans of the Civil war who have wrapped the drapery of their couch about them and lain down to pleasant slumbers."

"The 45th national encampment, held at Rochester, August, 1911, ordered that on Memorial Day, so far as possible, bells be tolled from 12 o'clock noon, until 12.05, that flags be placed at half mast, and that comrades remain with uncovered heads during that time."

"It was also ordered that in addition to Lincoln's Gettysburg address, general order, number 11, issued by Commander-in-Chief John A. Logan May 5, 1863 should be read as a part of the memorial exercises. Post adjutants will find a copy of the order in the 'Blue Book' under the head of Memorial Day."

"It is hoped that all posts with their auxiliaries will attend divine service on the Sunday preceding Memorial Sunday."

"Flag Day, June 14. Don't forget it, comrades. See to it that Old Glory be displayed from post headquarters and from your homes. Ask every owner of a flag to throw it to the breeze on that day."

He threw back his coat and ordered a meal in German. Then he exchanged a few pleasantries with the waiter on how badly the French are being licked at Verdun.

The waiter a few minutes later was whispering in the ear of the head waiter and soon the latter was in excited conference with the proprietor.

ARE CONDUCTING A CRUSADE

Mass. Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Oppose Sale of Young Chicks.

The Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is conducting a crusade against the cruel practice of selling little chicks and ducks at Easter time, and have sent out literature in the hope of stopping the practice.

It is indeed a very cruel thing to do and should be stopped. The chicks are usually given to children who, unintentionally no doubt, hurt them, or perhaps kill them outright. It is hard enough for the little feathered things to have no mother but an incubator, without allowing them to be tortured and die a wretched death.

N. H. COLLEGE NOTES

New Hampshire College, Durham, N. H., April 17.—Eggs are cracking and fluffy little yellow, white and black chicks are making wobbly entrances into this mud world at an alarming rate over in the old creamery building these days. It is the climax of the course on incubation taught by the poultry department.

The department has quarters in the building vacated by the dairymen when the new creamery was erected and the students find there a real poultry laboratory. Among the equipment are twelve incubators and these are now turning out scores of little "Reds," "Rocks" and Brahmas, which the students hand over to the solicitous care of mechanical mothers.

He who takes this course learns all about the peculiarities of an incubator. He has to clean and disinfect his machine as a preliminary, and then he received careful instruction in each step of the work. There will be, as a result, a material addition to the college flock of fine poultry this spring.

The routine of the college convocation each week was varied this morning when, instead of a speaker, a debate was held by two teams, selected from the college debating team. They took as their subject, Resolved: That the Swiss military system be adopted by the United States. The affirmative, consisting of R. L. McCartney, C. C. Bond and Vance Barchelor were the victors. The negative was upheld by A. N. Graham, E. R. Wagner and H. C. Hughes.

Capt. William E. Hunt, U. S. A., a graduate of New Hampshire college and formerly professor of military science here is visiting friends in Durham. He is accompanied by his wife and two sons.

FOREST NOTES

(From the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture.)
The increase in the demand for potash has resulted in a number of inquiries of Government officials concerning the amount of this chemical contained in wood ashes which may be available at sawmills operating on the National Forests.

The waste product of sawmills in the United States including that fed to the furnaces as fuel is estimated to be 35,000,000 cords per year, and the equivalent of 2,350,000,000 cubic feet of solid wood substance. About half of it has no use whatever but is usually burned to get rid of it.

The chestnut blight has already done damage estimated as close to $50,000,000. The disease attacks both American and European species but does little damage to those from Japan and China. Plant breeders by crossing Japanese chestnut and native chinquapin have produced resistant trees. Some of the Chinese chestnuts are said to grow 100 feet high in their home forests.

The annual losses of livestock on the National Forest ranges of the west due to predatory animals are over $500,000. An organized campaign is now going on to exterminate these animals. Wolves are responsible for about 70 per cent of the cattle losses, while bears cause most of the remainder. Approximately 75 per cent of the sheep losses are due to coyotes, 20 per cent to bears, and 5 per cent to lynxes and wild cats. Mountain lions are charged with killing only a few head of cattle and sheep.

PRESIDENT IN NEW YORK FOR SPEECH.

New York, April 17.—President Wilson came here Saturday and spoke at the dinner of the New York Young Democratic Club at the Knickerbocker Hotel.

It is reported that he made some important statements bearing on the campaign issues of the day. Martin H. Glynn, ex-Governor of New York, George McNary, Justice Clarence Sherrin and Alfred E. Smith, Sheriff of New York County, also spoke.

There was a notable gathering of local Democrats at the banquet. It is expected that everybody of prominence in the party who lives near New York will be present. The club which acted as host was formed last year by the younger men of the party in New York City and included both independents and regulars. Richard C. Patterson, Jr. is president.

SENATE ADOPTS PROVISION FOR OATH OF GUARDS.

Washington, D. C., April 17.—The Senate Saturday adopted 33 to 23 the Warworth amendment to the army bill requiring the national guardsmen to swear allegiance to the federal constitution and the President as well as to the Governor of his state.

HOLLIS BILL IN THE SENATE FOR THIS WEEK

Washington, April 16.—Congress will disgress from consideration of preparedness this week, according to present plans, to devote attention to matters of more interest to the farmer. By the unanimous consent agreement entered into a week ago last Saturday, the Senate will proceed to vote on the army bill and all amendments at 4 o'clock Tuesday, no senator being allowed to speak more than five minutes on any amendment thereafter. The Hay army bill, for which the Senate bill is substituted, having passed the House, the bill now goes to conference where the differences between the two houses will be ironed out.

The Senate plan is to take up the Hollis rural credits bill immediately after the army bill passes. Senator Bankhead has given notice that he will move at that time to consider his $75,000,000 good roads bill, but the understanding generally is that the rural credits bill, an administration measure of primary importance, will be given right of way. Senator Hollis says he will insist on this, and the leaders say if he does he will have his way.

There is general agreement that the Ferris public lands waterpower bill, which was displaced by the army bill, would better rest until the House acts on the Shields general dam bill. The conservationists think this wait will be in the interest of their cause.

House leaders say that the agricultural appropriation bill which has been pending several days, will consume most of this week. After that, either the Philippine bill or the merchant marine bill will come, according to plans. Most likely it will be the Philippine bill, for the merchant marine committee have not yet completed hearings on the rate regulation features of their bill and some committee consideration of the bill will be necessary after closing the hearings before it can be reported to the House.

The tariff consultation bill and diplomatic and consular bill are the only appropriation bills that have been reported to the House and await consideration. No appropriation bill is pending on the Senate calendar. The river and harbor and postoffice appropriations bills are in Senate committees. The Indian bill is in conference.

HAIR COMING OUT?

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 25-cent bottle of Danderin at any drug store, put a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After a few applications the hair stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff.

CHILDREN HATE PILLS, CALOMEL AND CASTOR OIL

If cross, feverish, constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach; and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs." which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

The railroads and steamship companies are busy on their mailing lists for vacationists.

CAMPAIGN FOR SUMMER BUSINESS

This City and Vicinity is Expected to Experience One of the Best Seasons in History

The business campaign for the summer of 1916 is on. It is time for everybody in Portsmouth and surrounding towns and summer resorts to get busy. This section is to experience and enjoy the greatest summer business in its history. The big hotels and boarding houses, by proper efforts, will jam their buildings with tourists. It is to be a great season. Now is the time to prepare. Do not wait until June. The rush will start in May. Portsmouth ought to enjoy more of this summer business. Let our people open up their rooms. Let us have a regular list of all accommodations that Portsmouth can offer to the people coming this way. No city or resort in New England has more to offer for tourists than the City of Portsmouth. It is cool, clean, and comfortable. Let us make Portsmouth the great resort city of this section of New England.

from Dummer Academy of South Byfield, Mass. This will be the first game for the local boys on their own field and it is expected that a good game will result, and a good crowd should be there.

A FITTING EXAMPLE.

Portsmouth, the City of Peace, Should Cease Business on Good Friday.

Someone has suggested that the business men of Portsmouth and all others cease business on Good Friday from twelve to three in memory of our Savior. To pause on this day when all the great nations of the world with the exception of our own is at war, and the terrible slaughter of human life has staggered our people for months, would appeal to our citizens as a fitting example to be followed by all. To think this horrible situation over thoroughly, and to deliberate for the future, might do much good. The example should be followed. The City of Peace might well lead in this movement.

OBITUARY

Died in this city, April 17, Mrs. Eva L. Shannon, aged 55 years, wife of Elwood L. Shannon, of Haverhill, Mass.

Mrs. Mary S. Morrison.

The death of Mrs. Mary S. Morrison, a well known former resident of this city, occurred at Atlanta, Ga., Sunday, at 1 p. m. Mrs. Morrison was the widow of Josiah Morrison, superintendent of the Jones Brewing Company for many years, and a sister of the late Frank Jones. She is the last surviving member of the Jones family. She leaves three grandchildren, Robert M. and Frank J. Margeson and Emily, Tokey of Atlanta, Ga. The body is on the way to this city for interment.

Concord wants an extra hour of daylight.

That he often takes a dory and rows up the river to Portsmouth with a stroke as lively and effective as that of a young man of 20.

That he served many years as a river pilot and was one of the best.

SIGN ON THE DOOR TELLS THE STORY

Dan Cupid, the naked winged boy, is responsible for many funny acts that develop as the result of the work of this ever best son of Venus. Of late Dan has been shooting his arrows often and pretty straight on Vaughan street and his victim apparently does not care who knows it.

On Monday the patrons of a business establishment on this street were surprised to see the place closed but more surprised when their eyes caught sight of a large sign placed across the glass window in the door which read as follows: "Gone away to be married. Will return Thursday. For further information inquire of Mr. —, next door."

Whether the prospective groom or some of his friends are responsible for this form of announcement of the matrimonial event may be a question, but the sign is there.
